Around Nebraska...

Nebraska Legislative Bills related to renewable energy, wind energy, and/or transmission, are listed below.

Register early for sixth annual wind conference. "Harvesting Nebraska's Potential" is the theme of the sixth annual Nebraska Wind Conference set for Nov. 13-15. The conference committee encourages attendees, exhibitors and sponsors to register early for the event, which will be at the Cornhusker Marriott in Lincoln. Unicameral has golden opportunity on wind energy. The Unicameral has advanced LB 402, wind energy development legislation that builds off of the existing Community Based Energy Development (C-BED) program, from General File to Select File by a vote of 33 to 0. The vote ... "shows that our elected officials understand the value of wind energy and the potential this industry can bring to our rural communities," said Johathan Hladik, Energy Policy Advocate for the Center for Rural Affairs. #### Wind and Wildlife

Gorge wind-farm proposal headed for high court. A Portland group's challenge of a controversial plan for a wind farm in the Columbia River Gorge is to be heard before the Washington Supreme Court. (http://seattletimes.com/html/localnews/2020911113\_windfarmxml.html).

Eagles:

Fish and Wildlife Service issues new guidance for eagle protection from wind projects. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service recently released updated guidance for eagle conservation that is meant to support wind power development while protecting eagle populations. The "Eagle Conservation Plan Guidance" is a voluntary supplement to the service's Land-Based Wind Energy Guidelines and is intended to help wind developers and operators assess the threats their projects pose to eagle populations and "develop comprehensive avoidance, mitigation, and compensation strategies," the service said in a statement April 26. (<http://www.sn1.com/Interactivex/article.aspx?CdId=A-17587380-10798>).

5 Steps To Keep Your Wind Farm From Killing Eagles. Any wind farmer will tell you that wind turbines kill far fewer birds than buildings, power lines, cars, pesticides and—those lethal predators—housecats. But Americans love their eagles, and windfarms from Maryland to California have made headlines recently for killing or imposing upon bald and golden eagles. (<http://www.forbes.com/sites/jeffmcmahon/2013/05/03/5-steps-to-keep-your-wind-farm-from-killing-eagles/>).

Eastern Shore wind project confronts eagles, Navy. A wind power project proposed on the lower Eastern Shore that's struggling to overcome objections from the Navy has a new, airborne worry — bald eagles. (http://articles.baltimoresun.com/2013-04-28/features/bs-gr-somerset-wind-20130428\_1\_wind-project-wind-turbines-bald-eagles).

Wind Industry Still Awaits First Eagle-Take Permit Under BGEPA. NAW has learned that West Butte Wind Power LLC has withdrawn its permit application enabling the developer to "take" golden eagles at a proposed wind project in central Oregon. It was the first wind developer to apply for a permit under the Bald and Golden Eagle Protection Act (BGEPA). (http://www.nawindpower.com/e107\_plugins/content/content.php?content.11446).

New Eagle-Kill Regulations for Wind Farms May Have Mixed Consequences. The federal government is overhauling its policy for permitting incidental deaths of eagles at wind farms. Developers, who in the past have faced steep fines should eagles collide with wind turbines, can now apply for permits that require compensatory mitigation in lieu of paying fines. But what, if any, effect will this have on new development? (<http://www.greentechmedia.com/articles/read/new-eagle-kill-regulations-for-wind-farms-may-have-mixed-consequences>).

Bats:

BWEC e-Newsletter v.13 April 2013. The newest Bats and Wind Energy Cooperative Newsletter is out. Check it out at: <http://www.batsandwind.org/pdf/newsletters/BWEC%20e-Newsletter%20v%20%2013.pdf>.

Thresholds for bats killed by wind turbines. Two things we do know: bat fatalities should be mitigated, and curtailing turbine operations is currently the only proven way to reduce kills. We suggest that a more meaningful approach is for stakeholders to collaborate on a site-by-site basis to implement a mitigation strategy that meets objectives for both industry and conservation. (<http://0-www.esajournals.org.library.unl.edu/doi/abs/10.1890/1540-9295-11.4.171>).

Wildlife

Do Bats Know Voices of Friends They Hang out With? Bats May Recognize Voices of Other

Bats. Is it possible that mammals have the ability to recognize individuals of the same species, whom they know well, by their voice? A new study has found that even in nocturnal, fast-moving animals such as bats, there is an ability to recognize certain vocal aspects of other bats from their social groups. (<http://www.sciencedaily.com/releases/2013/05/130507115539.htm>).

The article, Perception of individuality in bat vocal communication: discrimination between, or recognition of, interaction partners?, by Hanna B. Kastein et al. 2013 can be found at: <http://link.springer.com/article/10.1007%2Fs10071-013-0628-9>.

Ponds in acidic mountains are more important for bats in providing drinking water than insect prey. S. Seibold et al. 2013 determined that pond areas are more important to bats as a source of drinking water than as a source of prey. Based on these results, they conclude that monitoring bats by call recording and mist netting is promising around water bodies and conservation strategies should maintain a continuous network of water sources. (<http://onlinelibrary.wiley.com/doi/10.1111/jzo.12041/abstract>).

American Wind Energy Association names Tom Kiernan CEO. Tom Kiernan named to head AWEA, after 15 yrs growing National Parks Conservation Assn, bipartisan policy work. (<http://todayeco.com/energy/pages/13189004-american-wind-energy-association-names-tom-kiernan-ceo>).

Other

New Data Tool Illustrates Global- to Community-Scale Energy Trends. A new open tool to better visualize energy data and make this information more available and useful for state and local governments, private industry, and other energy researchers was released. The Free Energy Data platform (FRED) builds on the broader Energy Data Initiative—making energy usage and generation data more transparent, while accelerating the transition to a clean energy future.
